The New Coaching Framework

In 2013 Gymnastics Australia will introduce the new coaching framework which will be rolled out over the next three years. Tasmania is pleased to announce we will be piloting the framework, along with ACT, VIC and WA.

Hopefully the information below will help answer questions about the new framework including how it will work, what the transition process is for current coaches and when the courses will be available.

- The Beginner course will be launched first. This is a generic coaching course.
- We expect the Beginner course will be launched in February.
- All courses consist of an online component and a practical (face to face) component. The online part has to be completed first before it is possible to book for the practical course.
- It is estimated that the online course will take about 8 hours and can be completed over a number of weeks.
- The transition process for current coaches will take place in March/April and will involve the State Technical Committees and National Commissions.
- The Intermediate and Advanced courses are planned for release in the second half of 2013
- The new framework aligns to the Vocational Education Training (VET) scheme, enabling coaches to be awarded Cert II, Cert III or Cert IV in Sport Coaching on successful completion of the appropriate levels in the framework.

The links below provide more detailed information on the framework.

This is an exciting time for coach education and development in Gymnastics.
