

Coach Transition

Wednesday, 9 October 2013

All coaches should have received a letter advising a provisional accreditation in the new Coaching Framework.

If you have not received a letter from GA, please send an email to education@gymnastics.org.au.

Coaches are reminded that the appeals process is underway. You should appeal if:

- you believe the provisional accreditation you have been assigned does not reflect your level of competence.
- the provisional accreditation that you have received does not allow you to coach athletes that you currently coach.

How do I appeal?

You appeal by completing the application form which is available on the Coach Transition Appeals page of the GA website and submitting the application form along with evidence to GA.

Are you a GfA coach without a GfA accreditation?

A GfA coach without a GfA accreditation for the new Coaching Framework is able to apply through the appeals process for the accreditation. Please note that this is only for coaches who already have an accreditation and can prove that they are actually coaching GfA.

Please complete the GfA application form available on the website. At the end of the application form you will find criteria specific for GfA.
